

KURT & LOGAN HURST

KURT'S UPDATE

Things are going great at the Wesley. We just got back from Inter-Wesley retreat. We took about 30 students to Lake Texoma for a weekend retreat. The theme this year was Revolution. My uncle, Andy Hurst, was the speaker for the retreat. He really challenged the students to live revolutionary lives. He used the life of Paul the apostle to highlight some important truths about revolution. It was very impacting for all of those at the retreat. Students left with the challenge to live lives that embody the message of taking up their crosses to follow Jesus.

We are still praying on campus every Thursday. We have talked and prayed with over 100 students this semester. I have also found out that other groups are doing the same thing other days during the week. From the information I have gathered it looks like there are Christians talking and praying with people 4 out of 5 class days a week. God is definitely longing to move on college campuses this year. Please pray for His power to break in and His Gospel to be lifted up.

LOGAN'S UPDATE

It has been difficult this semester to stay motivated in my classes. I think that knowing Kurt is graduating in May has caused me to catch his senior-itis! This semester I started working as an office assistant at the Wesley Foundation. The transition was pretty smooth but I do miss being involved in some of the ministry that goes on there. I am still in contact with students on a daily basis and meet weekly with one girl. I am learning a lot of new things about working on the logistical side of a ministry.

This semester I have started something new and exciting. I am volunteering Thursday mornings at a crisis pregnancy center. This center is a faith based organization that offers free pregnancy and STD testing, peer counseling and referrals to other organizations to help woman in crisis situations. I currently am still in training and am learning so much! The training is biblically based and rooted in loving the Lord and loving the women that come through the doors. This is something I have always wanted to do and feel passionate about. I am so thankful that the Lord has given me this opportunity! If you would like to learn more about Parkridge you can visit :

PRAYER REQUESTS

As most of you know, this is my last semester at Texas Tech. In May, I will graduate with a bachelor's degree in philosophy. Logan and I are praying about what are next step is supposed to be. We have a few different options we are considering.

The first option we are looking at is moving to Kansas City and getting further ministry training with Kansas City International House of Prayer. The second option is moving to Wilmore, Kentucky to attend Asbury Seminary. The third option is to stay in Lubbock while Logan finishes her under-graduate degree.

Please pray with us as we seek the Lord for our next step. We want to hear his voice clearly and be obedient to what He is calling us to do.
